CAN YÜCEL

Dear Members of the Istinye Family,

Welcome to the 18th issue of ISU Library Bulletin.

I would like to welcome our students enrolled at Istinye University for the 2023 - 2024 academic year and wish each and every one of them a successful academic life. ISU Library will always support you in meeting your information needs throughout your education life. You can find more information about the facilities provided by the ISU Library on the Library's web page and guide.

While we are preparing to welcome our new students to our family, we are also excited to serve in our new library building. Work is progressing at a rapid pace. We are making final preparations for the library where you will feel at home with its group study rooms, research lounge and super quiet study area. The printed books we have purchased as part of the collection development for the new semester are waiting for your attention. We are also waiting for your suggestions on the publications you would like to see purchased.

The Library continues to offer new guides on its website and diversify its services under the motto #lifelonglearning. The page on "Fake News", one of the biggest threats of our time, will be a useful guide for you in combating this issue and in the fields of information literacy, media literacy and plagiarism.

Towards the end of the bulletin, a new page "Your Corner" welcomes your photos, criticisms and suggestions. The first guest of the column is dear Melek Gencer, Communications and Information Officer at the Department of Technical and Support Services.

As always, you can fill out the training request form on the Library's website for your training requests. We continue to support you.

In the 18th issue of the ISU Library Bulletin, we have included news from us, introductory information about library services and suggestions that we believe will be of interest to you in the librarian's suggestions column, I hope you will enjoy reading it.

Best regards,

Bahar Biçen Aras
Head of Information Resources and Library Department

FAKE NEWS

Istinie University Library has prepared a guide to contribute to your knowledge about the impact of fake news on the world and the solutions available to help you deal with fake news. First of all, in order to be a good consumer and producer of information, we need to develop critical thinking skills. You can use this guide to develop these skills.

The Guide provides tips and fact-checking resources to help you distinguish whether the news and other information you see, read and hear is real or fake. With the Guide, you can become information literate and media literate and critically evaluate information (e.g. distinguish fake news from real news). You can also be aware of ethical and unethical uses of information, including plagiarism.

Ask a Librarian!

Librarians are, in essence, fact-checkers by training. You can consult ISU librarians to help you discern what is real and what is fake. We are always here for you: kutuphane@istinye.edu.tr.

What is Fake News?

In the past, information was more strictly controlled by members of the media, journalists and librarians, but the open and ubiquitous nature of the digital world has made it difficult for these traditional gatekeepers to check and verify information. However, this spread of misinformation and disinformation has potentially devastating and dangerous consequences for the political and societal spheres (De Paor, Heravi, 2020, p. 1). We think that the information we share about what is fake news that affects our lives and how to detect it will help you.

Fake news is news that is printed or published knowing that it is not true. UNESCO's Journalism, 'Fake News' and Disinformation: A Handbook for Journalism Training and Exercises published by UNESCO defines fake news, misinformation, disinformation and malinformation as follows:

#EARTHQUAKE

WHAT NEEDS TO BE DONE

During an Earthquake

There should be absolutely no panic. At school, in the classroom or office, under or next to sturdy desks and tables; in the corridor, next to the wall, forming a life triangle. The head and neck should be protected by the DROP-COVER-HOLD ON movement.

When the Earthquake Stops

Telephones should not be used except to report emergencies and fires. Listen to warnings through mass media such as radio and television. AFET FM: 103.0

If You are Stranded

Check your situation without panicking. If your mobility is restricted, do not attempt to risk your life to get out. Know that rescue teams will try to reach you as soon as possible.

AUTHOR OF THE MONTH

August 21, 1926 - August 12, 1999

Can Yücel's poems, he used a sincere, relaxed discourse that approached everyday language. In one of his poems, Can Yücel said "My life is my most beautiful poem" and his main point of departure throughout his artistic life was his own life and experiences.

Can Yücel's Last Reportage (Saturday, February 27, 1997)

I live between my anger and my love

In his hand, the supplement of Hürriyet dated February 13... "Look," he says, "at the cover of this reading book. I am the child on the cover prepared by İhap Hulusi. At that time, my father, Hasan Ali Yücel, was still the General Director of Secondary Education.

Years have passed. The boy on the cover is now sitting opposite me. Over the years, many children have grown up with his poems, which he described as "both a curse and a blessing". He is now an old plane tree. But what a plane tree!

"Beni kuzum Datça'ya gömün Geçin Ankara'yı İstanbul'u!"

ABOUT A BOOK I'M READING

In Ursula K. Le Guin's books, there is the discovery, curiosity and magic of an unknown land; In The Eye of the Heron, we witness the discovery of an unknown planet and the struggle of another planet far away from Earth.

As we read, we witness the struggle of struggle, freedom, and the struggle to exist as individuals wherever there are human beings. In the flow of this fantastic story set on a different planet It is hard not to get carried away. A humble little recommendation for those who want to start reading Ursula K. Le Guin books :)
