OPEN ACCESS

WHAT IS OPEN ACCESS?

Open access addresses the problem of limited access to scientific outputs, often caused by high subscription fees. It is the practice of providing readers with free access to scientific information (articles, books, research data) and the licensing of this information to make it more widely used by researchers, industry and citizens.

OPEN SCIENCE AT İSTİNYE UNIVERSITY

It encourages publishing research outputs in open access peer-reviewed journals with high impact value. Publishing the studies and research results of research groups with the address of İstinye University on an open access basis increases the reliability and reproducibility of the studies as well as increasing scientific communication among researchers. In addition, these academic outputs contribute to the researches carried out in different projects to reach results in a shorter time thanks to open science.

For more information, please see the Open Science tab on the website.
