SETTINGS

The screenshot shows the Google Scholar Settings page. On the left, a sidebar contains three options: 'Profile' (checked), 'Articles' (checked), and 'Settings' (selected with a blue circle containing the number 3). A blue arrow points to the 'Settings' option. The main content area is divided into two sections. The first section, 'Article updates', has the text 'Scholar automatically finds your new articles and changes to existing articles.' Below this are two radio buttons: 'Apply updates automatically' (unselected) and 'Email me updates for review' (selected). A blue box highlights the 'Email me updates for review' option, with a blue arrow pointing to it. The second section, 'Profile visibility', has the text 'Public profiles help your peers find and follow your work.' Below this is a checkbox labeled 'Make my profile public', which is checked. A blue box highlights this checkbox, with a blue arrow pointing to it. Below the 'Profile visibility' section is the heading 'Follow by email (requires public profile)' followed by two unchecked checkboxes: 'New articles related to my research' and 'New citations to my articles'. At the bottom of the settings area is a blue button labeled 'Done', with a blue arrow pointing to it.
